The Daily Newspaper is an Instant Force

WISE national advertisers are not making long-time commitments these days. Conditions are changing too rapidly.

What may have been a bad market yesterday may be a good one to-morrow.

What might be a fair price to-day may be low or high a week hence.

Alert merchandisers are marshalling their selling forces so they can have the right men on the right spot at the right moment.

In times like these there is no force so adaptable to the problems of the manufacturer or national distributor as newspaper advertising.

The national newspaper advertiser can change his appeal overnight. He can move from one market to another instantly.

He can start here or stop there. He can make every advertising dollar count one hundred cents efficiency.

In no other medium except the daily newspaper can he have like advantages.

The daily newspaper is the medium of complete adaptability, just as it is the medium of immediate results.

Manufacturers and distributors interested in the problems of modern merchandising are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, 806 World Building, New York, for a copy of the book, "National Advertising and the Newspapers."

CRIME SLEUTHS ARE IN DISPUTE

Whether Edward F. Sands Knows Anything About Taylor Case

BUT THEY AGREE HE IS MISSING

"Too Many Wild Tips" Have Been Given the Investigators

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 14.—Officials connected with the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery to-day declared they were confronted with "too many wild tips" and too few genuine clues.

Many of these "tips" live through one edition of a newspaper and then disappear.

The detectives of the police department still declared their belief that the case never would be cleared up until Edward F. Sands, the missing former butler-secretary to Taylor, had been found.

And the sheriff's deputies still were firm in their contention that Sands had nothing to do with the case. The air was filled with rumors of "mystery men" and "mystery witnesses;" "drug peddlers;" "jealous motives;" and "revenge theories;" but back of them all were the facts that Sands had not been found; that the murderer had not been arrested; and that the case was unsolved.

DYED A SWEATER AND SKIRT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Every "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any worn, faded garment or drapery a new rich color that will not streak, spot, fade, or run. Perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old, shabby waists, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything! —adv.

DANDERINE

Stops Hair Coming Out; Thickens, Beautifies.

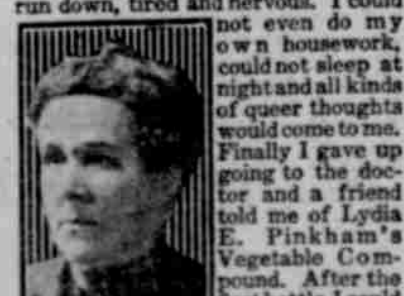

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store. After one application of this delightful tonic you can not find a particle of dandruff or a falling hair. Besides, every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and abundance.—adv.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN HANDS

Press the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon oil is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.—adv.

QUEER FEELINGS AT MIDDLE AGE

Women Should Know how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps at This Trying Period

Sheboygan, Wisconsin.—"I was run down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, could not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since. I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings." —Mrs. E. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

For the woman entering middle age Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can be of much benefit. During this time of life certain changes take place which sometimes develop into serious trouble.

WOMAN FIREBUG SENTENCED

Mrs. Florence Bullard of Newport Gets Nine Years

SHE CONFESSED SEVERAL CRIMES

Latest Was Feb. 8, When She Set Fire For Revenge

Newport, Feb. 14.—Mrs. Florence Bullard, 45 years old, was sentenced yesterday in municipal court to serve nine to ten years at the state prison for attempting to burn the old school hall on February 8. She pleaded guilty to arson and confessed to setting other fires over a period of years.

Revenge because she had been refused further gifts of clothing from the Red Cross thrift shop, after she had sold an article the shop gave her, prompted her attempt. She was discovered leaving the building the afternoon of February 8 with a bundle under her arm. The janitor, who saw the woman, soon afterward returned and found flames near the door of the shop. The fire was fought to a finish by the fire chief and the janitor and the building saved.

After a grueling cross-examination by State's Attorney A. W. Farman and Deputy Fire Commissioner A. G. Preble, she confessed.

Two farm buildings some years ago she admitted having burned and a short time ago a stable on Central street, owned by Edward Pece, in which two horses were lost, she also set. For fifteen years she has been a source of trouble, and for some time police have suspected her of having set fires but could never definitely fasten guilt upon her as she was clever in covering her tracks.

She has twice served terms at the house of correction for breach of the peace. She has a son who is now serving a term at the state prison. She has been four or five times married.

When asked what her motive was in burning the farm and livery buildings, an officer related, "Pure cussedness, I guess," and he added, "Now, I guess she won't trouble us for some time."

To Revive Frozen Plants.

The amateur, no matter how carefully he may be on guard, can hardly be expected to go through the winter without loss of some of the sitting room and greenhouse plants through freezing.

Correct treatment of frozen plants is not unlike that for a frozen hand or foot of a human, says the Rutland Herald. It is very important that the plant be not removed abruptly into the very warm atmosphere. We do not plunge a frosted hand into warm water; on the contrary, the best first-aid treatment is to rub it vigorously with snow. So with frozen plants, it is well to sprinkle with cold water and set them in a temperature just above the freezing point, there to be kept for several days.

In this way the frost will be drawn to the surface without rupture of the plant cells, which would result from the immediate application of heat in any form. Their return to the sitting room temperature must be as gradual as the extraction of the frost from them.

It may be necessary to do some pruning. All injured parts should be removed at once. Drastic cutting may leave a forlorn looking specimen of vegetable or flower, but it is better to retain diseased branches to communicate germs to the entire plant. Often the top should be entirely cut away, but it is rarely that the roots are injured from one night's cold, so that new growth is quickly made and the plant after a few weeks is none the worse for its experience with frigid weather.

Just what degree of cold plants in any given condition can endure without injury is difficult to state with certainty. If they are growing rapidly and consequently are full of sap they may be killed outright by the frost; whereas at another time they may be frozen so that the leaves hang down, but when thawed out are found to be uninjured. Much depends on the temperature at which they have been growing.

It requires no profound knowledge of gardening to understand that a plant accustomed to a rather cool temperature right along can the more easily endure a sudden cold snap than one that has been sojourned by unusually high temperature.

The best thing to do is watch the weather forecasts and when very cold weather is expected cover the plants at night with newspapers. Thus protected they will be enabled to withstand several degrees of frost.
